Resurrection

I hadn't heard much about Fr. Aidan Troy, the Passionist Priest who became famous as the Parish Priest of Holy Cross Parish in Belfast during the disturbances there many years ago. His name came back to prominence during the past week when he spoke about the fire at Notre Dame de Paris Cathedral. Fr. Aidan, who is Parish Priest of Saint Joseph's, the English Parish in Paris, visits the Cathedral once a week for evening Prayer and Confession. I was struck by Fr. Aidan's interview on RTÉ and his take on Resurrection

"Honestly, I think it's going to be a bit like Ground Zero. I think many people are going to go to Notre Dame now as a shrine, as it's being rebuilt. I think it will have even more visitors come to look at it and just to pay homage to something that we've lost. 'I may not live to see it, but I know it will come back. 'It's a bit like the story of this week, there will be a resurrection, I've absolutely no doubt about that. 'Just as Jesus Christ rose, Notre Dame will rise.'"

Like you I was shocked and saddened at the sight of the Cathedral being engulfed by fire. The Cathedral has been a place of worship for eight centuries as well as a place for twelve to fourteen million people to visit every year. It is also a reminder of the Christian heritage of France and Europe.

We are people of the Resurrection. When we lit our candles from the newly blessed Paschal Candle on Saturday night, the Church was in darkness and as we passed the candles to others in the Church, we saw how we can spread the light of Christ. We must bring this light to those we share our lives with during this Easter season.

Finally, thanks to all who contributed in any way to our Holy Week, Triduum and Easter Liturgies. Listing names inevitably leads to omitting someone, so, to one and all 'Thanks'. On behalf of the Parish Team, Parish Pastoral Council and myself I wish you a very blessed Easter. Fr. Damian Farnon, Moderator.

Let the resurrection joy lift us from loneliness and weakness and despair to strength and beauty and happiness.
